CHRIS LINCOLN-JONES

“The Rise of the Robot Warriors, from Drones to Lethal Autonomous Weapons, a look at the ethics of the use of lethal force”

Chris Lincoln-Jones has had decades of military experience in both the regular and reserve army. He has worked as a project manager and systems engineer in the defence industry advising on the military application of remotely piloted aircraft. Media contributions on both television and radio have led to work as a military advisor to the critically acclaimed feature films Eye in the Sky and Official Secrets.

Chris specialises in intelligence, surveillance, target acquisition and reconnaissance with a particular emphasis on remotely piloted systems. He is currently writing a novel that looks at the dawn of robotic weapons and the consequences of their use.
